Introduction

In this unit we will be identifying appropriate sources for tenancy options available to you. There are several options open to you when applying for a home; these will include councils, housing partners, housing associations and private landlords. If you are homeless the local council will probably direct you to one of the local charitable organisation they use.

This unit will list several options open to you and demonstrate how to apply to them for housing. This will include where you may be placed on a list due to your personal circumstances.

- By the end of the unit you will have a better understanding of the tenancy options available to you
- You will undergo some exercises to assess your knowledge during the learning process and a written assessment at the end of the unit
- You will be able to fill in a housing application form

This unit will be delivered on an individual basis.

L.O.1(a)

Gather information from appropriate sources about tenancy options available.

Local Council Options; the local council will normally direct you to the appropriate organisation to assist you; it will depend on your circumstances where they send you.

Housing Advice and Homeless Services have a dedicated housing team who will assist you in finding accommodation. They have several options open to them, these include temporary accommodation, and this may mean staying in a B&B while they assist you in gaining a tenancy. Staff will check if there are any available vacancies in any of the homeless accommodations. They will also assist you in completing your housing application forms.

Housing Advice and Homelessness Services also operates an emergency service for anyone who becomes homeless outwith office hours. The telephone number for the out of hours service is 0800 121 4466. This number is free to call from BT landlines, although other providers and mobile phone providers may charge extra.

Local council; they will not allocate you a home but will direct you to an organisation that will assist you in finding a tenancy. If you are placed in homeless accommodation, you may be there for six months or more while your application is being processed and an appropriate home becomes available for your needs.

Of course, depending on your personal finances, you may wish to apply for a home from a private landlord. This usually requires one month's rent in advance and you may also require references from previous landlords.

When seeking a new home, all customers aged 16 and over who wish to apply for rented accommodation will be invited by the local council to discuss their housing options.

Choice Based Lettings enables you to bid upon available social housing within your local area.

As an applicant you will now only have to complete one single housing application form to apply to all social housing landlords.

The applicant's details will then be held on file which will make the process of applying for social housing much simpler and quicker.

How Social Housing is Allocated

The allocation policy sets out the rules followed when allocating empty houses. Allocating means the process of selecting people from the housing list, offering them a house and, if they accept, signing a tenancy agreement with them.

Group 1 Homeless	Group 2 Mobility	Group 3 Housing need	Group 4 Exchanges	Group 5 General
Statutory homeless - unintentionally homeless	Priority A Critical mobility need	Priority A Critical housing need	Priority A Tenants under occupying ranked in order of number of extra bedrooms	Applicants with no housing need
	Priority B Urgent mobility need	Priority B Urgent housing need	Priority B Other tenants
	Priority C Mobility need	Priority C Housing need

They will work out the number of bedrooms you require using the following criteria, based on who will be living permanently with you in the household.

- No more than two people should have to share a bedroom
- One bedroom for couples/partners
- One bedroom for single adult/single parent
- One bedroom for two children of the same sex up to 8 years old
- One bedroom for two children of the same sex up to 12 years old
- One bedroom for each child 12 years or over

They will make common sense exceptions to these rules depending on individual circumstances for example, if you require an additional bedroom on medical grounds, if you provide foster care, if you have access to children who do not reside with you on a full-time basis.

You must note that the criteria for allocation is not based on the regulations set by Department for Work and Pensions. This means that you may not get housing benefits to cover any additional bedrooms you apply for.

Bedroom size and what you can apply for:

Private landlords use agencies to rent their properties, most estate agents will have a list of properties to let (such as Slater Hogg and Howison).

You will also find dedicated letting agents. These can be found in your local papers.

You may also visit www.openrent.co.uk put the area you wish to rent in and a list of vacant properties will appear including the monthly rent.

The local council also has a list of private landlords available which can be obtained by contacting the local council. This may not be the best option as it will list all landlords but will not tell you if they have any vacancies, costing you more in phone calls.

A tenancy agreement may be required when starting out.

Gaining and Sustaining a Tenancy

Identifying public sector and private sector tenancy types

L.O.1(b)

Identify one public and one private sector Scottish Tenancy type

After completion of this you will be able to identify public and private sector tenancies.

On the previous L.O. we listed the different types of Tenancy from this and the information that will be given in this L.O. you will be able to identify the difference between them.

- To complete this you unit you will complete a sample tenancy agreement for a public sector and one for a private landlord
- Complete the written questions

Public sector landlords

With this sector, as explained earlier there is now one application to apply for a tenancy and after completion of the form you will be placed on a waiting list for a vacant property to come up.

The waiting list can be quite long and could take up to a year to get a property depending on your circumstances, your place on the list will depend on the points system (which was explained earlier). In addition to this you can also utilise the online Choice Based Letting service which is updated every Monday at 10am. This will show you the available social housing properties and if any of these meet your housing needs you can register your interest and will be notified in due course whether your application has been successful.

When you are offered a property you will be given a viewing and have a short period to make up your mind if you wish to take this property, if you refuse the property you will be pushed back down the list and have to start over again.

If you accept the property you will be given a date when you can collect the keys to the property. The property will have been inspected prior to you taking up the tenancy, with all safety checks being completed; this includes the electrics and gas safe.

When you receive this property it does not come with any furnishings, carpets, light shades, white goods or cooking facilities, this is your responsibility.

The landlord has the responsibility for maintaining the property, this includes the garden and communal areas, but it is your responsibility, you will be asked to sign a tenancy agreement, with public sector this does not come with an end date.

You may also be asked to sign a good neighbour agreement, see below for a typical good neighbour agreement.

Typical good Neighbour Agreement

What is antisocial behaviour?

Antisocial behaviour covers a wide range of issues from littering, to dog fouling, to serious harassment.

Everyone has the right to live peacefully alongside their neighbours and your housing department (private or council) will take whatever action is necessary to resolve neighbour disputes. Experience has shown that it is better to attempt to resolve problems informally whenever possible.

However where a tenant (or visitor) is responsible for persistent antisocial behaviour the housing department will take action under their tenancy agreement. In the most serious cases this may result in eviction of the tenants responsible for causing the problem. Where the antisocial resident is not a housing department tenant, the housing department will use all appropriate legal measures to address unacceptable behaviour. This may include the help of other agencies such as police or the local authority.

We will:

- Ensure every tenant enjoys the right to security in their own home
- Ensure that all tenants enjoy the right to live peacefully without disturbance from their neighbours
- Ensure that every tenant can enjoy their right to a decent environment
- Take the strongest appropriate action against tenants and/or their family or visitors where antisocial behaviour is proven
- Take action against parents whose children are causing a nuisance where possible
- Co-ordinate action between housing department and other agencies
- Provide as much support and assistance as possible to the victim of antisocial behaviour. This may range from help in reporting a complaint to assistance with court appearances

You will:

- Be expected to show consideration for your neighbours and not cause a nuisance to them, their guests or the housing department staff
- Be tolerant of your neighbours be aware their lifestyle may be different from yours
- Contact your neighbourhood manager immediately if any antisocial behaviour issues arise
- Keep your house in a good state of cleanliness and décor
- Be responsible for the behaviour of your visitors
- Be expected to take your turn to keep any shared areas (such as staircases, entrances, gardens and drying areas) clean and tidy
- Keep pets under control and have the required permission to keep pets
- Not use your home as a business premise without written permission
- Only park your vehicles in appropriate areas, not on drying greens, gardens or common ground
- Keep your garden well maintained
- Place your household rubbish immediately in the bin provided and return the bin to the designated area or arrange for bulky items to be picked up or taken away
- Keep noise to a minimum and have consideration for your neighbours

What action can we take?

Tackling antisocial behaviour isn't just about getting tough – it's also about working together to deal with the issues and using the right intervention at the right time. The housing department is working closely with partner agencies to promote partnership working. We also work to promote good communities and community working.

The housing department has a number of options to combat antisocial behaviour. We will use the most appropriate and effective option to resolve the problem as quickly as possible. Wherever possible we will encourage you to work out disputes informally, however where further action is required we will not hesitate to use the options available including:

- Mediation services
- Referrals to support services
- ABSs acceptable behaviour contracts
- Verbal or written warnings
- Notice of proceedings stating that if problems persist court action will be taken to evict troublesome tenants

Action can also be taken through the courts against problem neighbours such as:

- Interdicts which prevent someone (owner or tenant) from continuing with their antisocial behaviour
- Eviction of tenants for breaching their tenancy
- Antisocial behaviour orders (ASBO's) can be used against the most serious offenders. Breach of these orders is a criminal offence. The sheriff court can issue an ASBO against anyone over the age of 12 although they are most often applied to those over 18. Breach of these orders is a criminal offence

Please be aware that if any of these areas are breached you will have breached your tenancy agreement and further action will be sought.

Private landlord

There are plenty of private lets available on the market at any one time available for you to view from various agents.

With a private landlord rental you have a much wider choice of the type of property available on the market from one bedroom home up to four bedroom homes.

You should be aware that private rental will cost you more than with the public rental, and with the private rental you will have to come up with a month's rental in advance. On most occasions the landlord will be looking for a deposit before you move in, this deposit may be withheld at the end of the lease for damages to the property etc.

The private landlord will ask you to sign a contract for the lease of the property these often come with a start and end date of the lease, it could be short term or long term, and often come with an option to extend the contract.

Unlike a public tenancy your rental property will normally come with cooking facilities, white goods (i.e. washing machine, fridge etc.) and floor coverings, they must supply the property with adequate heating facilities provide a gas safe certificate and maintain the property. So properties may have the option of coming fully or partially furnished. You may decide this is the option for you if you don't have any furniture, but these properties will normally have a higher premium rental.

You will be responsible for the general maintenance of the property, keeping the entire decor in a good state of repair (i.e. decorating, check with landlord on colour schemes etc.), the garden will also have to be maintained to a good standard.

Tenancy Agreement Information

A Tenancy Agreement also referred to as a Residential Tenancy Agreement, Short Assured Tenancy, or Assured Shorthold Tenancy Agreement, is a contract that sets out the obligations and expectations of the relationship of a landlord and tenant(s) during the tenancy.

You may use a Tenancy Agreement if you are leasing a house, flat, house share, flat share, or room to, or from, another party.

A tenancy may either be for a fixed period, which means it ends on a certain date, or it may be periodic, which means that it runs on a week-to-week or month-to-month basis.

Do I Need a Tenancy Agreement?

You may need a Tenancy Agreement if:

- You own a home and wish to let part of the property to a friend, family member, or tenant
- You are a tenant looking for a home or space to let
- You are a property manager or run a tenant placement service

What Does a Tenancy Agreement Cover?

A Tenancy Agreement includes information such as:

- The contact information for both parties
- Allowances, such as if pets, smoking, or home businesses will be allowed within the property
- The responsibilities of each party
- Financial details, such as payment amounts and due dates, late fees, and if there will be a damage deposit
- Option to purchase details if required

Where Can I Use This Tenancy Agreement?

You may use this agreement for any residential property within:

- England
- Wales
- Scotland
- Northern Ireland

Why is a Tenancy Agreement Important?

It's important to have a written contract between a landlord and a tenant in order to lay out all of the responsibilities and obligations of each party during the rental agreement. This way, both parties understand and agree to the terms, which can help to avoid conflict and disagreements in the future.

A Tenancy Agreement is designed to protect both parties' interests while ensuring that the property is maintained and cared for. Designating duties keeps the tenant in a comfortable home during the tenancy, and the landlord will receive a well-maintained home once the agreement has ended.
